Judge's Comments

Some lovely wines showing balance of finesse, fruit and complexity. Some good discussion about Rose, two diverse silver Roses went very close. Giving the Tasmania producers something to worry about.

Judge's Comments

Whilst there seems to be some willingness to explore style in the winery, there is plenty of potential to find opportunity first in the vineyard. Would be good to see greater fruit intensity and ripeness.

Judge's Comments

Preferred wines showing fresh, bright, varietal characters. Very few overly tropical examples, and similarly very few reductive wines. Adelaide Hills Sauvignon Blanc can have delicious "lime zest" characters, distinctive and delicious.

Judge's Comments

A mixture of styles from a clearly diverse range of sites. Best wines showing fruit intensity, balance and integrated oak. Wines showing unbalance acid, diacetyl and peggy oak were marked down. Many wines prematurely developed.

Judge's Comments

A clear preference to fruit intensity and both dry and subtly sweeter styles, both of which work well in this region. Slightly higher incidence of ferment related issues than expected.

Judge's Comments

Adelaide Hills seems to be the epicentre of Gruner Veltliner in Australia. Exciting. Uncertain as to what best examples are in this context. Better wines showing texture and white pepper. Some showing excess oxygen exposure or over zealous acid additions. Ripe and consistent flavours seem to be the key.

Judge's Comments

Lovely balance and florals in Gewürztraminer. Overall many wines lacking concentration and definition, perhaps with vine ages things will snap into focus.

Good to see a full range of styles being pursued. Best wines have fragrance, purity and balance. In sugar terms, less is more.

Judge's Comments

Top wines combine power, precision and elegance with freshness. A number of wines with non-varietal dry red characters and prematurely developed.

Judge's Comments

Nice expression of Cabernet here, some classy structured examples coming up. Best examples were ripe but not over ripe, with balanced fruit and gentle oak usage.
